DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

The story for PATIRI IN THE PROMISED LAND was influenced not only by the social climate that we find ourselves living in, currently in The United States, but also by the young Zimbabwean actress, Vongai Lyrique Mush, who plays the role of PATIRI.

I met her on the set of a past project of mine, in which she shared her fears and struggles as she herself battled the system to retain her place in our country.

Her stories haunted me and I knew I had been given the gift of making not only a social statement, by telling elements of her story, but also the opportunity of allowing this young actress to have a voice in the world, a voice that could potentially be far-reaching. Protest lasts hours. Film is forever.
